

New employment law Employers must verify workers' citizenship

JACQUE W. BROWN
Universe Staff Writer

The Immigration Reform and Control Act requires employers to verify the identity and employment eligibility of all new employees, including U.S. citizens, hired on or after June 1, 1987.

According to Don Lyman, director of employment services at BYU, the Immigration Reform and Control Act requires new employees to sign an I-9 Form that asks for their name, address, date of birth, Social Security number, and citizenship status. The employee is also required to present certain documents from a list of those specified in the Immigration Service.

"For a BYU student that is a U.S. citizen, a BYU I.D. card would seem to satisfy the requirements. A U.S. birth certificate, an original or certified copy, may be used instead of a Social Security card. Presentation of a current U.S. passport will also satisfy the requirement.

"In the case of a foreign student attending school on F-1 visas, the suggested documents are the current foreign passport with I-20 I.D. and I-94 Form," he added.

Employers are required to certify that the required documents have been seen. An employer hiring an illegal alien is subject to as much as a $10,000 fine and six months in jail.

"The law requires that the I-9 Form be signed within the first three days of work. Since some individuals may need to send away for the requested documents, it is of major importance that all new employees report to the Employment Office on or before the first day of work.

"Persons hired on or before Nov. 6, 1986 will not be required to complete the I-9 Form. Those persons who commenced employment between Nov. 7, 1986 and May 31, 1987, inclusive, who are still employed will be required to furnish the required documentation. This is not required immediately, but as soon as final forms are received from the government," Lyman added.

The I-9 Forms, the operative paperwork and an 18-page handbook that describes the new law are still at the government press.

Employers are hoping they will have the forms and the handbooks by the end of June.

Students having questions about the new law can visit the Student Employment Office in C-40 ASB or call ext. 3561.

Reagan warns Iran again

VENICE, Italy (AP)—As summit leaders arrived to the blare of trumpets in the courtyard of the Doges' Palace, President Reagan made a boldwill trade gesture to Japan on Monday and warned Iran that he is bluffing about possible retaliation against missiles in the Persian Gulf. Even before leaders of the seven major industrial democracies sat down for the first time at their 13th annual summit, Reagan made clear he will seek allied support for a strong and against Iran's threat to install missile batteries overlooking the Gulf's vital oil shipping lanes.

The president told reporters that U.S. warnings of retaliatory moves against Iranian missiles are neither a bluff nor a mere threat, but are "a statement of fact."

Japanese officials showed little enthusiasm for Reagan's announcement of a 17 percent cutback in tariffs on their country's electronics products, and called for removal of all sanctions as soon as possible.

But the mood was optimistic as Reagan and the heads of state of Britain, West Germany, France, Italy, Canada and Japan began three days of political and economic talks with a formal banquet at the 12th century Doges' Palace in St. Mark's Square.

Reagan, the last to arrive as the senior head of state, drew criticism from some Venetians for using a 100-foot-long white canopy erected by Secret Service agents to help safeguard his stroll from dockside to the palace.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, caught up with campaigning for British elections Thursday, missed the opening ceremonies. Heavy, intermittent rain forced Italian Prime Minister Amintore Anfani, the summit host, to move inside from the courtyard to greet his colleagues.

Reagan, after a private meeting with Japanese Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone, announced he was lifting $51 million, or 17 percent, of the $300 million in tariffs the United States imposed April 17 on Japanese electronics products in retaliation for Japan's dumping of 'unrealistically low-priced computer chips on the American market.

Calling Japan "a major economic partner as well as a staunch friend and ally," Reagan said his action reflected his commitment "to free competition in a fair market environment."

Be supportive, says Barbara Winder

NATALIE SWENSON
Universe Staff Writer

The purpose of this life is to be tested and experience both joy and sorrow, according to the general president of the Relief Society.

Barbara B. Winder, spoke at a BYU 16th stake fireside Monday night. She said sometimes people "have a tendency to think 'I am the only one who has a mountain to climb, the only one with a problem.' She said everyone comes discouraged at times, but people need to recognize that they are not the only ones who have problems. They should learn to be supportive of one another. She said it is easy to look at others and think how trouble-free their lives are, and to feel sorry for one's self.

Winder said it is wonderful "when people can overcome discouragement and rise above personal loss and move forward, gaining a victory where defeat appeared to be certain.

"The gospel helps people put things in proper perspective, to see the things of eternal nature," said Winder. Through faith, she said, people can overcome problems and recognize that many of them are blessings in disguise.

"This life is our test and all these things shall give us experience and shall be for our good. We grow and develop spiritually by the things we experience," she said. If there were no sadness, we would not know joy, and if no bitterness, we would not recognize the sweetness. People need the contrast in order to progress.

Some of the greatest problems can be the most help "as we work through to the solutions or to overcoming the obstacles, and it is there, in the growth and development of our character, that we find great happiness and joy."

Life is full of frustrations and challenges, said Winder. "It is important that people recognize where help lies." She quoted a divorced sister who believes that God relates to everyone personally and with unbending attention. Once can call on Him for guidance and support.

Forum focuses on fusion energy

NATALIE SWENSON
Universe Staff Writer

One of the world's leading researchers on muon-catalyzed fusion, a possible energy source will discuss a new approach to controlled nuclear fusion Tuesday at BYU Spring Forum.

Steven E. Jones, BYU professor of physics, will present an illustrated lecture at 11 a.m. in the de Jong Convention Hall.

Jones explains that modern society depends on an abundant, cheap source of energy such as oil, coal or natural gas. Since these sources will last for more than a few hundred years, scientists have been working in the past 30 years to imitate in a controlled way the sun's source of energy known as fusion.

The commonly known form of nuclear energy is fission, the splitting of atoms. It is expensive and difficult to control and creates harmful by-products. However, fusion, the fusing together of atoms, is cleaner than fission, and muon-catalyzed fusion cannot be used to make a bomb.

"Ocean water could supply the raw materials for fusion for many millennia," said Jones. "Unfortunately, the goal of tapping this immense reservoir of energy by means of fusion at sun-like temperatures has proven elusive."

In recent years, a new approach in achieving fusion has met with surprising success. By means of a catalyst, scientists have induced fusion at easily reached temperatures (even room temperature). The catalyst is a speck of matter known as a muon — the heavy brother to the electron.

A native of Pocatello, Idaho, Jones joined the BYU faculty in 1985 and has done fusion research in government and university laboratories since 1978. He received a bachelor's degree in physics from BYU in 1973 and a doctoral degree in physics from Vanderbilt University in 1978.

From 1979 to 1985, Jones conducted fusion research at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory. Since 1982 he has done research as principal investigator for the U.S. Department of Energy, Division of Advanced Energy Projects.

Conference-goers enjoy a game of earth ball. Youth from all over the U.S. are participating in youth conferences that began June 1 at BYU.

Youth conferences launched

By ANN B. SOUTH
Universe Staff Writer

Over 16,000 of them will come to BYU this summer bringing radios, hair dryers and scriptures. Youth conferences began June 1, and Kathy Kassel, 15, from Layton said she's happy to be here.

"It's really fun," said Kassel. "I like the dances the best."

Conference planning

Providing these dances and other conference activities involves several BYU services. The Church Education System (CES) helps stakes plan their conferences. Glen McClure, a CES coordinator of youth conferences on campus, said a CES coordinator visits the stake "much in advance to help plan the agenda and establish goals for the conference."

According to McClure, a typical conference agenda includes games the first day, workshops and a dance the second day, and a testimony meeting the third day. McClure said CES also acts as a liaison with other service groups on campus and works closely with General Services.

Terry Peterson, General Services coordinator of food and housing, said they employ several student coordinators who determine the food and housing needs of each conference. The department begins working with the conferences in January and February.

"It's a great experience and it brings a lot of income to the university," Peterson said. "It helps offset the cost of food and housing to full-time students."

Once the conferences arrive at BYU, CES and General Services coordinators conduct an orientation meeting for the adult leaders. Housing supervisors also participate in the meeting.

Supervising the conference

Corey R. Child, a junior majoring in business and communications from LaMirada, Calif., is a housing supervisor in Helaman Halls. Child said housing supervisors explain regulations of the housing area and are responsible for the group's living accommodations during the conference.

"Above all, it's most important that we help them have an excellent time," Child said.

The housing supervisors also perform night security each night the conferences are in the housing area, from 11:30 p.m. to 2 a.m. Child said this helps the leaders keep the youth in the dorms and off the streets.

"I enjoy this job because of the people I get to work with from all over the U.S.," Child said.

Jani Cone, a sophomore from Willow Lake, N.D., majoring in early childhood education, works as a resident assistant in Helaman Halls. Her duties include checking the conference into the dorms and working at the desk. She said she also has the opportunity to present a good image of BYU, since many youth ask her about it.

"I really like my job," Cone said. "I like working with people."

Stacy Duckley, 14, from Layton, said this is her first youth conference. She said she has thought about coming to BYU before and is more interested now that she's been on campus.

"It's a cool school," Duckley said.

BYU conferences different

Marylin Wright, a chaperon from Mesa, Ariz., has been to conferences at other schools and said "there is no comparison" with BYU. She said the lack of rules at other schools makes the conferences more difficult.

Wright said she "begs to be on the stake committee" if she isn't assigned to the conference, so that she can go each year. The Mesa Central Stake comes to BYU every other year.

"It gets us away from our own place and to an atmosphere we cannot create on our own," Wright said.

Brent Zollinger, a chaperon from Price, Utah, said the conferences are good experiences for the adults as well as the youth.

"I enjoy the spiritual workshops and devotionals and camaraderie with the kids," he said. "There's nothing (the youth) don't like about it, except maybe going home."

Home-court advantage boosts Celtics to win

By BRIAN SPERRY
Universe Sports Writer

The brooms, dustpans and chants of 'sweep' from Laker fans in games one and two were replaced on Sunday afternoon by chants of 'beat L.A.' by Celtic fans as the Celtics defeated the Lakers 109-103 in game three of the NBA finals.

The finals to this point have been a 'home sweet home' affair. Each team has won on its home court. Boston fans hope the home-court advantage will help the Celtics even the series at two games apiece in tonight's fourth game in the Boston Garden.

The Celtics, who had been searching for an answer to the Laker fast-break that decimated them in Los Angeles, finally found the answer sitting on their bench.

Seldom-used Greg Kite, a third-year center out of BYU, sparked the Celtics to victory. The much-maligned Kite came off the bench and played the game of his career.

Celtic Coach K.C. Jones was forced to look to his bench early in game three when Robert Parish picked up his third foul early in the second quarter. The Lakers were thinking sweep when Parish went to the pines, but it was Kite who did the sweeping as he pulled down nine rebounds and blocked a Magic Johnson layup attempt to ignite the Celtics.

The 6-foot-11 Kite played outstanding defense against veteran center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. Kite helped hold the NBA career scoring king to a series low of 13 points.

"Greg was the big difference in the game," said Celtic guard Danny Ainge, who played a sound floor game, scoring 12 points and handing out five assists.

Kite played defense against Jabbar like a seasoned veteran. He forced Jabbar to alter his shot time and time again, as Kite used his big body and good defensive position to thwart Jabbar.

"K.C. had the confidence in Greg to start him the second half and leave him in through most of the third quarter. We didn't need Greg against Detroit or Milwaukee, because they didn't have big dominating centers. Remember, Greg played well for us in last year's finals against See CELTICS on page 5

Union releases Wilberg Mine report

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The 27 miners who died in the Wilberg Mine fire would have survived if their federally approved escape routes had offered real protection from lethal smoke, the United Mine Workers of America says.

In a report harshly critical of the federal Mine Safety and Health Administration and the mine's operator, the UMW also contends the Dec. 19, 1984, fire began at an overburdened conveyor belt, not at a faulty air compressor as MSHA concluded.

"In this disaster, 27 people died, not because a fire occurred, but because they had no way out," said Joe Main, director of health and safety for the Washington-based union and the report's principal author.

"Had effective escape routes been provided that were properly ventilated, the fire should not have cost a single life," he wrote.

Much of the 82-page report, issued Tuesday, reiterated the union's long-standing opposition to the MSHA-approved, two-entry system in use at the Wilberg, a deep underground mine in the coal-rich mountains of eastern Utah.

The system, used in fewer than a dozen western mines, uses one passage for access to the mining face and another for a conveyor belt. Both are designated escapeways by MSHA.

However, the union claims the system "reduced the number of escape entries available to miners and provided inadequate ventilation, which did not protect miners from the smoke and deadly gases produced by the fire."

North's secretary testifies in hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fawn Hall, Oliver North's former White House secretary for four years, told congressional committees Monday that she helped him shred a foot-and-a-half stack of documents as the Iran-Contra affair began unraveling last fall, then walked out of the White House with other papers hidden in her clothing.

Hall said she took internal office notes past White House guards in her boots and in her clothes behind her back on Nov. 25, the day President Reagan fired North as a national security aide.

She also described altering documents at the direction of North and hurriedly shredding so many documents that they jammed the shredding machine in North's White House office.

"I was just purely doing my job," Hall said.

Testifying under a grant of immunity from prosecution, Hall recounted the destruction and alteration of papers just before Attorney General Edwin Meese III interviewed North during a weekend investigation he conducted at Reagan's request. North was fired the following Tuesday.

U of U to divest South African stocks

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The University of Utah Institutional Council passed a resolution Monday directing the school's investment managers to divest currently held stocks in U.S. companies doing business in South Africa.

The resolution, passed by an 8-1 vote, applies to those companies that have not announced a sale or withdrawal from South Africa, and on the condition that comparable investments can be found, said Pam Fogle, university news director.

Gift stocks accepted by the university with the condition that they be held will not be affected, even if they are in companies doing business in South Africa, she said.

The council's vote received enthusiastic approval from Students Against Apartheid, who for more than a year have been protesting the university's investments in companies in South Africa because of that nation's apartheid policies.

Fogle said she did not know the exact worth of the stocks affected by the resolution, but said, "I understand it's not substantial."

No fund set up for North, Secord says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retired Maj. Gen. Richard V. Secord said Monday his business partner, Albert Hakim, was wrong when he told the Iran-Contra hearings that a $200,000 death benefit fund was intended solely for the family of Oliver L. North.

Secord, who managed the U.S. arms sales to Iran and resupply of weapons to the Nicaraguan Contras, said the fund was designed to pay medical bills and survivors' benefits for all main participants in the operations.

This included not only primary figures such as North, but the crews flying dangerous missions to Central America, Secord said in an interview.

Secord also said the Iran-Contra committees will soon be told what went on at a meeting among himself, Hakim and North as the affair was unraveling last November, and rather than charging a cover-up as some have been suggesting, "you're going to go ho-hum."

Hakim told the hearings last week that he secretly established a $200,000 Swiss account as a "death benefit" for North's family, on the eve of a flight to Tehran in May 1986 by North, who was then a White House aide.

Arnold moves to Arizona as assistant

HONOLULU (AP) — University of Hawaii basketball coach Frank Arnold announced Monday that he has accepted a position as assistant coach at Arizona State.

Arnold, who has been head coach at Hawaii for two years, said he "liked the job description" for the Arizona State position. "I won't have the headaches, nor the joy of being a head coach anymore," he said.

He also cited personal and professional reasons for his decision to leave Hawaii. He said the new job will give him more time to spend with his family and a chance for him to be closer to his mother, who is ill.

However, he said the biggest factor for his decision was the overall support of basketball at Arizona State.

Hawaii Athletic Director Stan Sheriff said Arnold will be released from the one year remaining in his contract.

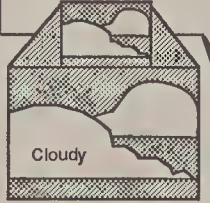

Arnold will be taking a pay cut from his $60,000 salary at Hawaii, but he said the difference will be made up because of Hawaii's high cost of living.

In his two years at Hawaii, Arnold's teams finished with records of 4-24 and 7-21.

The forecast for today is cloudy in the daytime with scattered thundershowers in the afternoon with highs between 80 and 85. Low temperatures will be in the mid 50's.

Man follows him home

Boy, 8, attacked

By GARY M. WEISS
Universe Staff Writer

A man in his late 40s approached an 8-year-old boy, dragged him to some nearby trees, then tried to molest him after the boy declined a $1 offer to remove his clothing, said Provo City Police.

The boy was riding his bicycle on State Street when the incident occurred Thursday.

Capt. George Pierpont said the boy's parents got a good description of the assailant when he followed the boy home. "Because of the good description, hopefully we'll get some good leads from the public," he said.

The suspect is described as a six-foot-tall, heavy-set white male with beard and moustache, police said.

The boy described him as having a "fat stomach," and wearing a baseball cap, light-brown shirt and blue pants.

The suspect was driving a newly painted 1974-75 Chevrolet short-bed, four-by-four pickup. It was tan on the top, brown in the middle and tan on the bottom.

Pierpont said if apprehended, the suspect will be charged with attempted forcible sexual abuse, a third-degree felony, and kidnapping, a second-degree felony.

The combined sentences of second-degree and third-degree felonies could bring a maximum of 20 years in prison and a $15,000 fine.

Utah given lake rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled Monday that the state of Utah, not the federal government, owns the bed of Utah Lake.

In a 5-4 decision, the court said Utah was granted title to the 150-square-mile lake, the largest freshwater lake in the state, when it was admitted to the union in 1896.

Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, in her opinion for the court, rejected Reagan administration arguments that federal laws of 1888 and 1890 establishing federal reservoirs overrode the state's claims.

"The United States points to no evidence of a congressional intent to defeat Utah's entitlement to the bed of Utah Lake," she said.

The ruling overturned a decision by the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, which said the lake is under federal ownership because the U.S. Geological Survey designated it a reservoir site in 1889.

The ruling ensures the state of Utah mineral rights to the lake bottom, for which oil and gas leases were issued in 1976, said Utah Solicitor General Dallin Jensen, who argued the case for the state.

Jensen said the value of the minerals is not known because exploration fell victim to declining oil prices.

Parking pass to come in mail

by TERESA STEENHOEK
Universe Staff Writer

Lines, lines and more lines. It seems like BYU students are always standing in lines. That will not be the case this year at the BYU Traffic Office. Starting Fall semester the Traffic Office will be handing G and Y permits through the mail. Students who are living off campus this fall can save time and avoid inconvenience by ordering their selected parking permits directly from the Traffic Office.

"We will mail permit registration to any student who purchased a parking permit from the Traffic Office last year, and is a returning student," said Mike Harroun, manager of traffic services. There will be transferable parking permits for students who have more than one car. Harroun said the one disadvantage with transferable permits is that they are easy to steal. "Students will have to be careful and lock their car doors. If someone is found with a stolen or lost parking permit, they will receive a $50 fine," said Harroun. Five different types of permits will be issued through the mail:

- Non-resident student permits — (required by Utah) Exempts non-resident students driving out-of-state vehicles from purchasing Utah license plates and paying Utah vehicle taxes. Any student driving an out-of-state vehicle must purchase a non-resident permit. The non-resident permit is a prerequisite to obtaining a BYU student parking permit.
- G permits — Valid in G and Y lots and issued in limited numbers.
- Y permits — Valid only in Y lots.
- Y-cycle permits — Valid in all motorcycle areas except those reserved exclusively for faculty and staff. It is required for motorcycles, motor scooters and mopeds.
- Transferable permits — Available as a Y permit or a G permit. It allows the multiple vehicle owner only one vehicle on campus at a time. It saves money over purchasing a permit for each vehicle.

Handicapped, housing and surplus graduate permits will not be available through the mail, Harroun said.

Six BYU students to study in Soviet Union

by MARK R. DIXON
Universe Staff Writer

Six BYU students will depart for advanced cultural and language studies in the Soviet Union this month under grants from the Richard Smith Fellowship and the College of Humanities.

Karin J. Harman, David Rodeback and Shelley Hill are recipients of the Beal fellowships, which provide $1,000 for their studies, said Ray C. Hillam, director of the David M. Kennedy Center for International Studies. Humanities Dean Todd A. Britsch has also awarded Brian J. Aitken, Jennifer L. Stone and Steven L. Towne $1,000 awards from the College of Humanities. While in the Soviet Union, Harman, Rodeback, Aitken and Stone will participate in the American Council of Teachers of Russian program to be held in Moscow, said Gary L. Browning of the Germanic and Slavic Languages Department. Hill will study with the Council on International Educational Exchange and Towne will be with Associated Academic Programs, both in Leningrad, said Browning.

"The students received these awards because of their outstanding academic achievement," said Britsch. Harman, from Calgary, Alberta, Canada, recently graduated from BYU with a double major in Russian and French. She will attend Yale University on a full-tuition scholarship next fall. At BYU she has held Presidential, Ernest L. Wilkinson and Karl G. Maeser scholarships.

Rodeback, a U.S. Presidential scholar and a Kimball scholar from Moreland, Idaho, is pursuing a double major in political science and Russian. He was named the 1986 BYU Honors Freshman of the Year and is the philosophy and religion editor of the Journal of International Studies: A Student Perspective. Hill, a native of Mt. Pleasant, Utah, is the founder of the BYU Slavic Outreach program, which teaches elementary students about life in the Soviet Union. She is attending BYU on a Presidential scholarship and is majoring in Russian and European Studies.

Aitken, from Huntington Beach, Calif., has a double major in Russian and economics. He holds a full-tuition scholarship and is a research assistant in the Department of Economics. Stone, whose majors are in Russian and zoology is a recipient of a full-tuition Board of Trustees scholarship. She is a native of Incline Village, Nev., and has been a research assistant in the Department of Germanic and Slavic Languages.

Towne, a Russian major and economics minor, has a full-tuition Board of Trustees scholarship. The Mesa, Ariz., native was nominated to the Golden Key National Scholastic Honor Society.

Students to name new space shuttle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Students will be invited to suggest a name for the new space shuttle orbiter, to be built to replace the Challenger that exploded last year, NASA announced Monday.

The replacement shuttle is tentatively scheduled for delivery in 1991, and the school project to select a name will be conducted during the 1988-89 school year, said National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials.

NASA Administrator James C. Fletcher said students nationwide will be asked to undertake a research project to develop the new name, and the space agency will make the final choice.

Final Examination Schedule for Spring Term Classes 1987

Final examinations will be given at the times shown in the following schedule. Examinations are not given early. The examination period is preceded by a reading day, which give time for conscientious review and study and synthesis of the term's work. The reading and examination periods are firmly scheduled parts of the term; students must not make plans that interfere with these important academic activities. If illness or other uncontrollable circumstances prevent a student from taking an examination at the scheduled time, that student is responsible to inform the class instructor as soon as possible. The instructor may give the grade Incomplete, depending on the circumstances. The incomplete cannot be given unless the student and instructor together prepare a contractual agreement.

If a class begins after the hour, the final exam period is determined by the beginning hour. Example: a class beginning at 8:35 must take the 8:00 exam period.

In cases where a student has conflicting examinations or more than three examinations in one day, individual arrangement for alternative test times may be made by the instructor. Examinations will be held June 17 and 18, with a reading day Tuesday, June 16; therefore, Monday, June 15, 1987, will be the last day of instruction.

* Evening class examinations will be given during the last class periods.

"A New Approach to Controlled Nuclear Fusion: Energy Source of the Future?" (an illustrated lecture)

Modern society depends on an abundant, cheap source of energy. Oil, coal and gas currently meet most of our energy needs, and these may last a few hundred more years. What then?

For three decades, scientists have attempted to imitate the sun's source of energy, known as fusion, in a controlled way on earth. Ocean water could supply the raw materials for fusion for many millennia. Unfortunately, the goal of tapping this immense reservoir of energy by means of fusion at sun-like temperatures has proven elusive.

In the last few years, a new approach to achieving fusion has met with surprising success. By means of a catalyst, we are able to induce fusion at easily-reached temperatures, such as room temperature. The catalyst in this case is a speck of matter known as a muon—the heavy brother to the electron. Recent progress in muon-catalyzed fusion research at Brigham Young University, and now many places around the world, suggests that energy production by this means is just possible.

Question-and-answer session at 12 noon in the Varsity Theater.

Role-playing helpful in stress

By SUSAN POTTER
Universe Staff Writer

The next time you fail a test, imagine yourself the protagonist in a Greek tragedy. Tell yourself you did the best you could, but that fate and the great gods made your failing grade inevitable.

According to the instructors of a BYU stress management workshop, this type of role-playing will help students deal with stress. The workshop, sponsored by the Counseling and Development Center, SWKT, encourages students to get relief from stressful situations by changing the way they perceive things.

Instructor Cydney Woolley told attending students the hardest part of managing stress is changing how they perceive potentially stressful situations.

"It is important to get the big picture," she said. "When you view a stressful event as just a fragment of life and not a major tragedy, it becomes a lot less threatening."

Students were instructed by Woolley and two other instructors, Lynne Scott and Ellie Young, to pair up and tell another person about a stressful day they have had recently.

Then they were asked to role-play the same day in the context of a situation comedy, a Greek tragedy, a soap opera, a fairy tale, a bore, an athletic event, a pitiful mess, or a trap. Students were told to be dramatic and have fun with the exercise.

Scott said this technique is used to get students to change their way of thinking. She said it shows them not only that things can be perceived in many different ways, but that people need to learn to laugh at themselves.

Woolley told students to practice this exercise in their daily lives: "Sit down and change your perception during the day," she said. "You will not only learn to manage stress, but also to adjust easily to change."

Students were also instructed to perceive stressful situations in relation to life as a whole.

Scott said they could think of something stressful as a challenge, a good experience, a natural part of life, humorous or fun, or understandable because of another person's background. She said it is important to keep one's interpretation in mind.

Library exhibits art; shows creative process

By RANDALL L. BECKHAM
Universe Staff Writer

The Harold B. Lee Library is exhibiting the works of five artists in the Special Collections area through June 30.

The exhibit highlights four Utah natives and one New Yorker: John Hafen, Mahonri M. Young, John Septimus (Jack) Sears, William Galbraith Crawford and J. Alden Weir (from New York).

The exhibit features paintings, drawings, prints and sculptures. It also takes viewers "behind the canvas" to help them understand how the artists felt about their works while in the creative process.

"The exhibit demonstrates many areas of interest beyond a mere display of art," said Dennis Rowley, a senior librarian and author of the exhibition catalog.

It then follows their works through processes that show how they functioned on larger social, economic and political scenes. These insights are accomplished, in part, through photographs, letters, sketches, financial records and journal entries of the artists.

Among the archival material, for example, are samples of "Side Glances" cartoons and New Yorker magazine illustration by BYU-trained artist Crawford, and a New York Evening Post magazine cover by Weir.

Each featured artist has previously enjoyed Utah acclaim. Hafen (1856-1910) received praise near the end of his life. Respected U.S. artist J. T. Harwood said that Hafen was "the greatest landscape painter Utah has yet known."

Hafen once illustrated his interpretation of the hymn "O My Father" through paintings. A controversy arose among members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and other denominations. The exhibit contains a letter of defense for his work he sent to LDS General Authorities, along with their response.

Hafen was also a member of the first group of artists sent abroad to paint murals in LDS temples and chapels.

Young (1877-1957), a grandson of Brigham Young, is remembered for his many sculptures. He created the Seagull and This Is the Place monuments in Salt Lake City. He has also received national acclaim and recognition for the massive statue of Brigham Young that stands in the statuary hall of the U.S. Capitol in Washington D.C.

Prints, drawings and sculptures by Young are displayed, as well as some personal correspondence. Among some of his philosophies displayed is the thought, "The craftsman respects his materials. The artist dominates them."

Sears (1875-1969) became known for his drawings of cats. "Cat Drawings" was published while he was an instructor of art at the University of Utah.

Crawford (1897-1969) was a member of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer art studio where he produced publicity materials. He also illustrated for Harper's Bazaar, New Yorker, Cosmopolitan, Redbook and the Saturday Evening Post, among others.

Weir (1852-1919) created a substantial body of art that included portraits, figure studies, landscapes and murals.

Canyon to get cleanup

The fifth annual Little Cottonwood Canyon clean-up will be held Friday, June 12, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The cleanup will begin at Alta Lodge, Alta, where volunteers will meet for a continental breakfast, group registration and area assignments. Groups will then be shuttled to their assigned area to pick up litter.

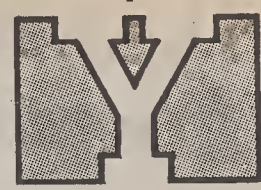

They will then meet on Snowbird's Plaza Deck for a free lunch.

After lunch, the groups will create an art work or "Garb Art" out of interesting pieces of garbage they have collected.

An awards ceremony will follow, with prizes awarded in several categories.

Hospital holds drug campaign

By CHRISTINE KILLIAN
Universe Staff Writer

Charter Canyon Hospital is holding a three-month campaign called "Go Drug Free," said Kathy Mecham, hospital spokesperson.

The main purpose of the campaign is to educate the public and to make people aware of the rise of drug abuse in Utah.

According to a 1986 report from the Utah Department of Drug and Alcohol, the cost of a cocaine habit ranges from $200 to $3,000 per week.

Marijuana was used regularly by 70,300 Utahns.

The use of heroine, barbiturates, tranquilizers, cocaine, inhalants and LSD among Utah high-school seniors is higher than the national average.

Thirty-two percent of Utahns 12 years old and over used alcohol last month.

The campaign, running June through August, takes place during the summer because, during the rest of the year, schools already do much to educate children and teens about the dangers of drug abuse, said Mecham.

Various businesses in the Utah County area will participate in the campaign to demonstrate their interest in combating drug abuse.

The hospital will conduct free drug seminars during the campaign. The first scheduled seminar, June 10 at the hospital, will address the issue of "Teen-agers, Alcohol and Drugs."

The seminar will be presented by Gale Everton, Ph.D. candidate in Clinical Psychology at BYU. According to Mecham, most of the seminars will be scheduled as individuals call the hospital requesting information about drugs. A toll-free number is also available for individuals to call for information on specific drugs. Crisis-line workers, the majority of whom are licensed social workers, will answer the phones 24 hours a day to address questions about drugs. The number is 1-800-962-HOPE.
